

Third Issue

Urban Inequality

The city is a living organism that grows, evolves, transforms, and sometimes gives rise to phenomena that affect the quality of life of its inhabitants: segregation, gentrification, inefficient mobility, and other forms of urban marginalization. Therefore, this issue seeks to be a space to discuss the seriousness of these problems, often normalized, from urban, architectural, sociological, artistic, and other perspectives.

CALL FOR SUBMISSIONS

Xpacial magazine invites designers, artists, and creators of all disciplines to participate in its third issue under the dossier: Urban Inequality.

Participate from August 7th to October 31st by sharing your reflections and projects on the challenges of the cities we live in, under the themes of:

- Urban marginalization.
- Social marginalization.
- Urban planning with a gender perspective and inclusive urbanism.
- Lack of services and public spaces in the peripheries.
- Who is the city designed for, the car or the pedestrian?
- Gentrification.
- Inefficient mobility.
- Promoting sensitivity to the urban phenomenon in the classrooms.
- Repercussions of poor urban planning on mental health.
- Elitism in urbanism.

You can participate in the following modalities:

Visual work: collage, sheets, photography, sketch, 3D models, renders.

Textual work: critique, scientific article, or review.

For more information, check the rules at <https://revistas.uaa.mx/index.php/xpacial>

